Local Ministers' Conference.

RUThERFORDS, July 24. The tabernacle meeting and local ministers' conference is in active session at Rutherford. Dr. R. H. Whitaker, president, is in the chair and makes a pleasant and energetic presiding officer. Tuesday was taken up with the regular conference exercises from 9 to 11 a. m. Sunday meeting—preaching at 8 and 11 a. m.; from 3 to 5 p. m. Song service interspersed with addresses. Arthur L. Butt came on the grounds some days in advance and has organized an evangelistic choir. He has about 100 voices and is the great attraction of the tabernacle meeting. At night he exhibited in the church his Great Revelation Panorama to a large audience. The sermons, addresses and other exercises are of all special interest and calculated to do great good.

Dr. A. T. Porter lectures in the Y. M. C. A. hall to-night on "Palestine and the East," the proceeds to go to the hospital. Dr. Porter has just returned from abroad, and his lecture promises to be of great interest and value.

ACROSS THE CONTINENT

MRS. WELLS' LECTURE AT OPERA HALL.

AN INTERESTING AND ENTERTAINING TALK.

Her Reception at Different Parts of the Country—A Story of Senator Jones of Nevada.

Mrs. Wells, national organizer of the W. C. T. U., made an interesting talk at the opera hall last night, to a good sized audience. Her subject was "Across the Continent." She began by telling of her experience at Wilmington, in this State, and spoke in the highest terms of the work done there by Mrs. Pearson, wife of the evangelist. From there she went to Norfolk, Va. In speaking of that place she said: "I went to the Soldiers' Home, at Norfolk, and found that the United States government furnishes quantities of beer to the inmates of the home, every month. Congress sends it there, but who pays for it? The soldiers use their pension money to pay for it. From there we went to the Lee Confederate Home, in Richmond. I knelt by the side of one soldier who had lost some of his limbs and he whispered to me that the home had been so much more pleasant since the women, the white ribbons, had been coming to it. I said to myself, here is where the women control things and there (at Norfolk) where the government does. There is drink there and none here. I went on to the convention at Chicago. All the way, in the noise of the train, I could hear a low voice crying, the prohibition of the liquor traffic. In Chicago I could hear it in the noise and bustle on the streets.

From Chicago I went to Texas, and all the way, I could hear the same thing. In Texas a man spoke to me and said: 'He wished for the times of his mother, when women never thought to speak in public. He said he was afraid of the movement of the women in this day. I told him that if the women had stood twenty-five years ago where they stand now we would not even remember about the liquor traffic. This man was a congressman, and he said that the only sensible piece of legislation that had been done on the question was the law for scientific instruction on it in schools. He said the man who introduced that ought to be canonized and was surprised when I told him that a woman was responsible for it. He would hardly believe me. I went on to San Antonio, and from there I went into New Mexico and Arizona.

Stopping at Bisbee, the greatest mining place in the world, where there are so many foreigners, mostly of the lower classes, I wondered how I could do any good there. I was not a pioneer worker and my heart almost failed me, but the 18 women in the audience induced me to speak. The men came in, cleanly shaven and neat, and I talked to them of home and what they had left behind them. Tears came to their eyes as they remembered the women they loved best. When through, I said, 'I wish we could organize a W. C. T. U. when one of the men from the back of the audience rose up and said, 'Why can't you?' We did, and a collection was taken up. Those men gave $55.75, and I think it was because they had had a woman to talk to them. A number of them signed the pledge, and I have recently heard that four of the bar rooms in Bisbee have had to close because of want of patronage.

I found the Tucson, Ariz., from Bisbee and went to W. C. T. U. of that place had a mission among the Mexicans. I next stopped at Yuma, where, some traveler has said, the gates of inferno are located. It was certainly very hot. I found the Indians selling their wares on the streets, and to those passerby who looked like Catholics they would cross themselves, and to others would say that they were Christians. It was done for the purpose of selling their goods, and at Pasadena the W. C. T. U. had a convention in session. I wondered if there was ever anything like it. I had just left conventions at Asheville, Chicago and Texas and Asheville was one at Pasadena.

In San Diego I found some white ribbons, but also found some women that were not. They would laugh at those who did wear the white ribbons, from San Diego I went one hundred miles above San Francisco. In all towns white ribbons were to be found. One thing I noticed in California was the absence of obscene pictures and show cards displayed. I found that there was a law in the State that forbids the printing or even writing of obscene pictures or literature, and the offence is punishable by fine and imprisonment. The women did this. They went to the legislature and took the members unawares. They got them to thinking their way and the bill was a law before they knew it.

From San Francisco I went to Pacific Grove. This is the only place in California where alcohol is not tolerated in any shape or form. If a man tries to carry an original package in there he is not allowed to do so. The bravest women I ever saw are in Nevada. There are but 200 members of the W. C. T. U. in that State and yet they have a law like California's against obscene literature and also a law for scientific instruction in schools. They were trying to get a law for women's suffrage when I was there. The convention was in session then and on the second day of July a woman came running breathlessly in the room and said that the brewers were going to furnish free beer and that the saloon keepers would be in the procession on the fourth. The women determined to stop that. They first went to the firemen and got them to promise to stay out of the procession if the saloon keepers were in it. Next they went to the soldiers and said they would not do a thing for the procession and would not go in it if saloon keepers marched and free beer was furnished. The women promised to get a big dinner ready if the soldiers would refuse to march and they did so. The saloon keepers didn't march.

Tom Jones, a senator from that state was to speak. He was called the "silver-tongued" orator and he is a smart man. One time he left his wife and children in a depot. He told them he would be back soon. He didn't come, and his wife went to a hotel. There she found him with a woman she had never seen. He went off with the other woman and married her, and his wife has not seen him since. The ladies asked me if I wanted to meet him and his wife. I declined. I would not meet a man with such a record as that. I was to speak for a few minutes just before he did and when I said that the time has come when pure manhood must walk side by side with pure womanhood, all over the union, he seemed to be frightened as if he was meant.

We came across the mountains, and were delayed for forty-eight hours by burning snow-sheds. While waiting, the ladies and the gentlemen on the sleeper drank wine, and one young man, who was travelling with his mother and young wife, became drunk. I remarked to his mother that I would not have the responsibility that rests on her shoulders for the drunkenness of her boy and told her that the time would come when he would say "my mother did it."

To-Day's Session.
The devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. H. B. Kells, who read the 12th chapter of Romans. It was followed by prayer.

Miss Gordon's half hour was filled by a general discussion on the best means of holding the older boys in loyal temperance legions. Miss Gordon rather deprecates a military drill for them as there is a peace and arbitration department in the W. C. T. U. whose special work is to discourage a thirst for blood shed. The power of music, cheerful entertainment, and flowers were mentioned as efficient agents, with school work in directly interspersed amid the brightness. Miss Gurney has prepared, at the W. T. P. A. a series of lessons for senior classes which are valuable aids to teachers. Something set the boys to doing especially for others. The general sentiment of the assembly was for making use of the military drill because it is in the nature of a boy to like to parade, but teach the boy that there is no need that a soldier should kill anybody, but turn his warlike instincts against the powers of evil.

Miss Fannie Griffin, of Alabama, a national organizer, Rev. Dr. Webb, of Savannah, Ga., Mr. Fitch Taylor, of Asheville, and Mrs. Ellen Murray, who has organized a Local Temperance Legion at Beaufort, S. C., of 1,000 members, also an original crusader, Mr. Ray, Dr. Wm. J. Young, of South Carolina, and Mr. Morrison, president of the Young Men's Christian Association were introduced to the Assembly.

Dean Wright filled his hour with great profit and entertainment to his hearers in continuance of the Scientific Method of Bible Study.

A very interesting hour was filled by Miss Willard and Mrs. Woody in the conduct of a Parliamentary Drill which grows in favor daily.

Miss Griffin was called to the platform in a short talk on Parlor Meetings. The main point in these social meetings, she said, is not to exhaust all our power of entertainment in one meeting. Sometimes women can be collected only in a reputable parlor for a meeting for ladies only, because some women are very timid about Yankee fanaticism and politics. Miss Griffin said we had been in politics ever since we knitted socks and sewed on buttons and made flags for the soldiers; and the argument seems to fail when Yankee capitalists come down with a pocketful of dollars to buy Southern land and to establish factories. Miss Griffin was very bright and humorous in her remarks and brought out much applause.

Miss Willard will lecture in the opera hall to-night on Social Purity, and in the Methodist church Sunday night on "What think ye of Christ."

Accident Insurance

Is either a humbug or it is the best insurance in the world.
Mathematicians and statisticians for a period of more than forty years have finally concluded that every seventh man who dies between the ages of 18 and 65 years dies from accident, or in other words his death would bring a claim that would be valid in a good accident insurance company. Now, if this is true, accident insurance is better than life insurance and life insurance is good for nothing.
And again according to further professional, mercantile or otherwise, is about forty times more liable to receive injury to his person from accident than he is to lose his property by fire, hence we naturally conclude that accident insurance is about twenty-four times better than fire insurance and the latter is considered good and a commercial necessity. Now, if this importance is attached to accident insurance, then every educated business man will be sure to take an accident policy, and again, if it is of this great importance why not be very careful in selecting your company and take the best.

The undersigned General Agent is at present in the city looking after the interests of his company and tells the people that he is prepared to prove that the United States Mutual Accident Association of the City of New York, is the largest, best, cheapest and has the largest cash assets of any company in the world doing an exclusive accident insurance business. Good agents wanted.
